STAT

Article appeared on page B-13

THE WASHINGTON POST 13 February 1979

Jack Anderson

Shah's-Eye View of Trouble

President Carter and the CIA have been getting their lumps from just about everybody for not knowing what was going on in Iran, supporting the shah until it was too late and failing to cultivate contacts with the exiled Moslem leader, Ayatollah Ruhol- vinced him, said the shah, that a prelah Khomeini. 医细胞性小性 化二氢化氯

But there is one man, perhaps the only man in the world, who says he believes just the opposite: Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Embittered and increasingly paranoid since he was forced last month to flee the nation he had ruled and looted, the shah says he believes Carter and the CIA knew all too well what was happening in Iran. In fact, he claims the CIA engineered his fall from power and the ascendancy of Khomeini.

This astonishing interpretation of recent events, which flies in the face of conventionally accepted reality, was expressed just hours after the shah fled into "temporary" exile. He had a " private talk with Egyptian President. Anwar Sadat at Aswan on Jan. 16. Intelligence sources have provided us double-crossing and treason [sic] was with a detailed report of this top-secret carried out" in the final days of the conversation.

him for blindly supporting the shah in a leave Iran temporarily to enable the the face of mounting evidence that her military and his other supporters to was losing his grip on Iran, the shah keep Khomeini from returning and credits Carter with the most astute pave the way for the shah's eventual diplomatic double-dealing since Talley-greturn to power. rand. And while the CIA's detractors. Actually, according to the shah's ing Khomeini, the shah told Sadat that as early as last spring he had undeniable information "that American agents are flirting with the opposition."

The U.S. embassy in Tehran conrequisite for better understanding of President Carter was the dismissal of Gen. Nematollah Nassiri, head of Iran's secret police. When he fired Nassiri in 1978, under U.S. pressure, he told the Egyptian president that leftwing, Moscow-led groups in Iran interpreted this as a sign of weakness, and stepped up their opposition with massive strikes.

The president later hailed Nassiri's ouster as evidence of the shah's concern for human rights, the shah said. He told Sadat that "the biggest doublecrossing took place" when Carter reaffirmed his support for Iran, knowing full well that American agents already had "open channels" to Khomeini.

If that was the biggest, what the shah described as "the most disgusting January crisis in Tehran. The shah, While Carter's critics have faulted acting on American advice, decided to have castigated the agency for ignor-unique view of events, the Americans were warning the Iranian military thatif they tried to seize control and bringthe shah back, the United States would cut off all supplies and assistance. This warning was delivered, the shah told Sadat, to top Iranian brass by Gen-Robert E. Huyser, second in commandof American forces in Europe, and, word of the warning was passed on to Khomeini in Paris.

It was this sneaky power play, the shah said, that made it possible for-Khomeini to return from exile and which thwarted the shah's plan to regain his throne. In light of his experience, the shah told Sadat, the Egyptian president should not trust the Carter. administration or take its advice.

Footnote: A CIA spokesman said the agency could not comment on the shah's interpretation of events.